STAYING WELL ACTION PLAN (SWAP)

This Staying Well Action Plan (SWAP) allows you as an individual to develop your own positive approach to overcome any challenges surrounding your Mental Health and Wellbeing. The plan does not have to be completed all at once and is yours to share with whomever you feel comfortable. It is important that the contents reflect your needs and therefore it is something you can work on as an individual or with the support of those invested in your journey of recovery.

The purpose of the Staying Well Action Plan is to develop your own recovery and provide you with a resource which you can use as required to help you look after your wellbeing. By focusing on yourself, you will be able to learn, grow and be more positive as an individual and this document can adapt over time with you in line with your recovery.

The Staying Well Action Plan is an effective tool to help you to take control of your own self-care and wellbeing and will support you in living the life you want to lead.

How you can make use of your Plan

You can use the plan in any way you want to, however, some ways you might consider using it are listed below:

- When you come into contact with a new service or professional who is supporting you in some way
- When things are starting to feel more challenging and you want to check in with your support network
- When you find something new that helps
- If the people that support you change

Recovery Values and Beliefs

HEAR ME

H OPE – We believe in the reality of recovery for all. Hope can provide the motivation to make a change.

E XPERIENCE – We believe recovery is a unique and individual experience. Everyone’s experience is their own and everyone’s experience is valid.

A UTHENTICITY – We believe being authentic is about being true to ourselves.

R ESPONSIBILITY – We believe wellness and recovery involves taking responsibility for the things we can do to improve our own wellbeing.

M UTUALITY – We believe that mutuality is core to peer working, working side by side with one another.

E MPOWERMENT – We believe empowerment means being in the driving seat of your life and having the ability to control the choices you make.

Things that can impact on my recovery

Sometimes there can be events or actions that can cause our mental health to deteriorate when we experience these. Sometimes these are referred to as triggers. When a trigger is experienced it can lead us to react or feel a particular way. Use the space below to share the events or actions which can make you feel a particular way and how you can react or feel when this happens. If there are things which help you can explore these too.

My Early Warning Signs

My early warning signs are a way of helping me notice changes in my mental health. Identifying when worrying thoughts and feelings are trending and becoming a pattern can help me help my mental health.

Early indicators can include things like feeling less tolerant or less motivated to do our day-to-day tasks. You could find yourself more easily distracted or beginning to spend less time with loved ones. Whatever they are, your indicators will be individual to you.

What are your early indicators?

Gauging My Mental Health

It can be helpful for us to find a way of gauging “what stage” our mental health is at. Let’s try putting our indicators on a gauge to see if we can figure out what stage our mental health is at.

Let’s think of Green as what you are like when you are well ...

Amber as early indicators ...

Red as signs your usual coping strategies are not working ...

When I notice my Mental Health beginning to change, there are some steps I can take to prevent it worsening. Below are some steps I have tried before and found to be effective in keeping me as well as I can be.

What's changed and what could help?

What can I do to keep myself safe when I become unwell?

Things that help me to keep well and make me feel better about myself?

My Circle of Support

When we need support, it can be helpful to remember who is in our support network. Circles of support are based on an understanding of the importance of relationships in our life and the need for strong support networks.

You can note below people around you who are in your circle of support.

My Support Address Book

Who is most likely to be able to provide the appropriate care and support for you at this time? Who can you share this plan with that can help you?

Some of the people who might be able to help include: a friend or family member, a trusted neighbour, a GP, a support worker, a peer worker, the Community Mental Health Team, someone from the third sector e.g. Borders Care Voice, Borders Carers Centre, Health in Mind, Penumbra, We are With You, Adult Mental Health Local Area Co-ordination (LAC) Team.

What to do if I'm unwell

This part of your SWAP gives guidance on what can be done to support you, if you become unwell.

You are encouraged to share this part of your plan with those you trust and feel can support you if you are unable to look after yourself and make decisions about your own wellbeing.

This plan should be used if you are not able to do one or more of the things below. This is what, in law, is called capacity you are said to lack capacity if you are unable to:

- act; or
- make decisions; or
- communicate decisions; or
- understand decisions; or
- retain the memory of decisions.

A medical doctor may assess your capacity and only they can decide if you lack capacity. However, you may be aware of signs you notice yourself or other people have noticed when you have become unwell in the past.

Moving on from needing help right now

Recovery does not stop when we become unwell for a period, instead our recovery journey is still ongoing even when we experience a setback or feel as if we are stuck.

One of the most important things we can do when we experience a challenge or a setback is to allow ourselves the opportunity to look back and reflect how we felt at the time. When a challenge is overcome, it can be useful to think, what helped to get past the challenge or what made it more difficult? By identifying the things that worked well and the things that made it more challenging we can use this to help us if something happens in the future.

Equally if we are feeling stuck, it can be helpful to try and reflect on what is making us feel this way. Perhaps it's because we have lost sight of some of the things that we know can help us or perhaps it's because we need to find some new ways to cope. Either way being aware of how we are feeling and reflecting on this can help us to move on and look forward.

Privacy and Confidentiality

This plan is yours and therefore it is up to you who you share it with. If you choose to share it with others, remember it is a good idea to ask for a copy of an organisation's privacy policy before you share your plan to make sure that you are happy with how they might use the information within your plan.

If you share your plan, make sure you are happy with those you are sharing it with having all of the information included in your plan. If there are parts of the plan you would prefer not to share, that's okay – you should only share what you are comfortable with.

If you are no longer in contact with someone who used to provide support to you, you can also ask that they return your plan to you or destroy their copy.

If there is anything you are unsure about or require more clarity on then please seek support from those you have chosen to share this document with.
